Run No. 2081. The Magnificent Seven and Duke

Preamble :

Beckenham beckoned but Orong turn increased my travel time. The GM was on site as I arrived and Bloo followed close on my heels hotfoot from Broome.

The GM announced that he would be officially retired as of the morrow and had plans to grab his Super and pay off his debts.

As the time to be off loomed, we discovered that the GM had disappeared only to have him reappear right on the stroke of 6.30.

The Run :

Bloo and Duke, with Orig. on a tight leash, took off at a gallop followed by Elvis and Diesel with Alias and that Elderly Gent, Fitzall, bringing up the rear.

An early false saw us back-track in sight of the Bucket, used to be a "no no" but then we've let a few Traditions slip over the years.

We remained strung out for the duration of the Run. Diesel retired early due to a pronounced limp, pronounced "limp". After 40 minutes or so Home was in sight and the promise of a few bevvies quickened the pace. The spread of nibbles was daunting given the small turnout but hey we gave it a go.

Alas was co-opted as VM and invited to give a 3-minute warning. Elvis was in charge of Splash having recovered from his initial shock at discovering that there were only 7 Wife Bashers in the Esky.

The Rundown :

Comments on the Run were invited and Orig. claimed that it was too long. Bloo felt it best to say nothing but was moved to award a 7. Diesel thought that it was straight-forward and gave it 6.5. Elvis reckoned it was commendable given the absence of Blank and was very generous it scoring it a 5. Fitzall said that it was ok and admitted that he had not been paying attention to his surroundings on the Run as he was busy talking to Alias. The VM ruminated on all this and deemed it a 7.1 effort.

Prick of the Week :

The VM set his sights on Elvis for ringing him at work, not once but twice, to complain about the miserly ration of Wife Beater in the Esky. A paltry 7 he cried. DD Elvis.

Charges :

The RA had a go at Fitzall, who in spite of having received extended coverage on the TV News, had failed to take the opportunity to promote Hash.

Next in the RA's sights was Alias for failing to sign the Book and attempting to rectify the situation by signing in and out in full view of everyone present. DD Alias.

He then turned his attention to Orig. who had lead us a merry dance in trying to establish the whereabouts of the misplaced Run Book. DD and Glasses for Orig.

General Business :

The GM asked everyone to update their Run Stats. as the New Book had been lost in a recent Housefire. He had prepared a spreadsheet for the purpose.

Fitzall got a Thank You for managing to save the Cash Tin from the flames.

Diesel, our hard-working Social Secretary, had put his life on hold to organise a Hash Lunch on Friday 19 May. The Venue was said to be Jack's Bar "You know that Irish Pub in Leederville?" said he. If you have trouble finding it everyone else in Perth knows it as Fibber McGee's in Newcastle St., opposite the Leederville Hotel. Never get old. "Pardon?"

Diesel advised that we need a new Home for the Trailer from June onwards and Orig. kindly offered his abode. Apparently Rtt, that Master of the Quick DD, was keen to accommodate us but Orig. got in first.
