Run 2119 - West Coast @ Malaga

Preamble:

We had the usual 6 Bully Hashmen turn up for the run. I arrived at the dot of 18:15 which was 30 seconds behind the GM, only to see the pack heading out on the run. To say that the GM was unimpressed about the "early start" was an understatement. The mere fact that all West Coast runs start at 6:15 is irrelevant.

The Run:

After a short while we managed to catch up with the rest of the walkers as they were crossing Alexander Dve and heading into the Badlands of Mirrabooka. Lead by Nostrils and Basil Brush (armed with a run map) we went deeper into the Badlands, where the two leading lights of West Coast became confused about our location and between these two intellectuals managed to get us back on trail and towards a drink stop. Somehow we managed to find our way into the scrub surrounding a large sand pit, where refreshments were waiting. However with the combination of Nosty's ability to interpret Google Maps, combined with Basil's map reading skills and numerous phone calls to the Hare for interpretation and clarification, we never made a drink stop. We did encounter the runners after their third drink stop and decided it best to head home thirsty.

The Rundown:

Undies was impressed by the run despite having to venture into the Badlands of Mirrabooka, but the bush part of the run was good. Blank was overwhelmed that there were three drink stops on the run. Basil was impressed that Blank could count up to three. Not to be outdone Blank left the circle and rummaging through the extensive wardrobe he seems to carry around in the back of his ute returned wearing a West Coast Hash 100th Run shirt. The GM became excited at the thought of Blank defecting to West Coast, but they quickly rebutted the idea.
