Run 2123 The GM Fills the Breach @ Mullaloo

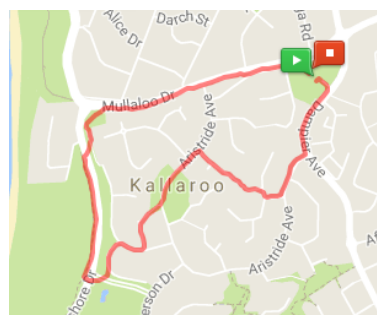

Preamble:

A last-minute email was received from the Hare, that he had to fly off to Melbourne due to a family crisis and that the GM had agreed to set the run and Pyro would organise mash. Not to be deterred, we had what could be termed an average turnout for a run these days.

As the GM had set the run he requested the back-up Hash Horn to fill the breach. Unfortunately Blank believed that the horn had become contaminated with some contingent which may cause him to catch any number of diseases some of which may not be known to mankind and refused the GM's request. Undeterred we were told that the run was on white chalk and it would not be very long.

The Run:

This evening we were lucky enough to have Viagra back in the big smoke so all the false trails were tested by our sole runner (Blank it seems still has a sore toe), enabling the rest of the pack to meander around Mullaloo, loiter around the checks and not get lost.

Distance 2.81km Time 36:01

The Rundown:

The RA was appointed to elicit comments about the run

The first comment was solicited from Rooted who questioned who set the run? Upon being informed that it was the GM, he promptly awarded it a 10.

The next to be solicited was Blank and for the first time in his life had nothing to say.

Boydwunder was asked to express an opinion and gave it a 7.5

The RA advised that considering the last-minute call up and the fact the GM showed true leadership in volunteering to set the run awarded a worthy 7.95

POW:

The GM wasted no time in deciding upon a worth recipient of the Phalanx. Before the start of the run Bloo requested the back-up Hash Horn to fill the breach. Unfortunately, Blank believed that the horn had become contaminated with some contingent which may cause him to catch any number of diseases some of which may not be known to mankind and refused the GM's request. This combined that the only pathogens to be found on or in the horn would belong to the GM, the refusal and the insinuation the GM would infect a fellow Hashman, meant Blank was this week's worthy recipient.

Charges:

Viagra – Pyro Pyro advised Orig to sign the book thus distracting Orig from his Hash Cash duties
Reversed DD – Viagra
GM – Orig Orig called 7 out of 10 Hashmen the wrong name. Orig's excuse was he was old and had lost his memory. Guilty DD - Orig
