Run 2145 Rooted's Hill Climb @ City Beach

Preamble:

What a glorious night for a jaunt around City Beach and environs. A fine reception waited for the 10 Bully Hash Persons that turned up, with Rooted having fired up the outdoor fireplace and those in attendance gathered around to try and warmup prior to the run.

As per tradition, the GM called upon the Hare for instruction at or around 18:30. "You are on chalk, mostly on the kerb because there are not many footpaths around City Beach. There is also some paper in a section of bush. There is a drink stop but you have to be willing to climb up a few hills. The on is out the front and the head toward the beach.

The Run

Off we went following trail off chalk on the kerb, uphill and uphill some more. Whoever, said City Beach is flat has never ventured past Smoo Boulevard. With ample arrows and a few checks and false trails, the pack went along a short section of road and into into what appeared to be a big dark abscess. This road soon petered out and we then went into the section of bush, marked by dunny paper. Up we went again along a narrow winding track and in true Hash style ended up under a water tower, with the Hare waiting with refreshments.

Considering we were at the highest place around, some star gazing and planet spotting was on the agenda. Blank one the greatest minds since Albert Einstein, put all his powers of deduction into this task and was unable to decide which bright light in the sky was Mars and which was Venus. Fortunately, the GM being very wise, attempted to educate Blank by informing him that "Venus is in the west (towards the coast and therefore Mars is in the east (towards the hills). Blank's response to this information was "You could be right Bloo". Without missing a beat Bloo responded with "Of course I am right, I am the GM and it is a Monday night." After this interlude and everyone being suitably refreshed, it was time to head of again. The instructions given were go down until you find the fence and then follow it.

Unfortunately, we never found the fence, but did manage to get down the hill and find trail. The pack continued to meander through the highways and byways of City Beach, checking at checks and following trails. The last of which was uphill and just one street away from the bucket. The GM was heard to mutter some bad words about the hare. His mood did not improve upon his return home, when he found out that the remainder of the pack, had upon hearing the call of “False Trail”, had managed to avoid the last hill and were happily consuming cold beverages in front of the fire in Rooted back yard.

Distance 3.34km Duration 53:57

The Run Down:

The GM called upon his subjects to give their consider opinions of the run and offer a score.

First asked was Orig. “It was hilly, up and down – 9.5”

Second was the self-proclaimed Master Setter (Blank) “It was quite well marked, new territory and the drink stop got everyone primed early – 8.8”

Lastly Fitzall was asked. “Good run, good terrain – 7.5”

The GM after considering all this declared, “I was going to give it an 8 until the last false trail and I walked up it, so I am going to take off 1 for the one street it was from home – 7.0”

Prick Of The Week:

Despite Blank doubting the GM’s celestial knowledge at the drink stop, no POW was awarded this week.

Charges:

- | | |
|--------------|---|
| Fitzall – RA | The RA rang up Fitz to check on his welfare following his fall last week. Fitzall was chastised by La Fitz, for not checking on Pyros welfare when he was incapacitated The GM decided that both the RA & Fitzall should be given a DD. |
| GM -Orig | Story Orig told the GM about a Vulcan Bomber navigator. The GM had no understanding of what Orig was talking about. Guilty DD – Orig |
| RA – Rooted | Having to big a house. It took the RA ¼ hour to get to the trailer for a drink. Guilty DD - Rooted |
