Run 2151 – Elvis’s Close to Home Run @ Kallaroo

Preamble:

From the moment I arrived carrying the scribe’s bag, attempting to give hard copies of the rag to the computer illiterate, holding the dog chain, trying to get money out to pay Hash Cash and get a drink after the battling the traffic on the long road north, I was set upon by the Perennial Pest waffling about changing his run date. My suggestion to send me an email went unheeded, as Diesel advised he did not know how to do this. A minor matter I disagreed with.

The GM called the Hare, Elvis , in the centre for instructions, being a cool evening with the wind coming straight from Antarctica, Elvis offered to all a breath taking, concoction to get the runners blood circulating and eyes watering. Then started to talk of chalk on footpaths, or where no footpaths, on the road on the right-hand side. Armed with this information the pack set off, followed by the Hare to make sure there was not a repeat of last week and Fitzall losing the pack.

The Run

The run zigzagged through parts of Kallaroo where there were few flash houses and generally not a lot to see (but it was getting dark so WTF). The run had quite a few checks and false trails and was cunningly set so as to make it hard for short cutters.

Distance: 3.51 Km Duration 46:08

The Run Down:

GM got the circle going at about 1950 hrs. Elvis in the centre for judgement and Pyro the first to be asked for an opinion. He made a few comments about how it nearly choked him so say anything nice, however it was good territory, well marked and the pack stayed together – 7.8. Rooted concurred with Pyro's assessment, then Fitzall also agreed with the previous comments and added that the use of the laneways was a good touch. Then the only opinion that counts from GM. He said it had plenty of falsies, he was impressed with the use of the laneways and the arrows were good. Expecting the usual score of 7 the GM shocked all in attendance and broke his normal barrier and gave the run 7.7

Prick Of The Week:

The GM it seems that the advice the On Sec give to Diesel prior to the run start about the method to advise of the swapping his run was not acceptable. Especially considering that Diesel was swapping with the GM. Therefore, the Phalanx was given to Tampax.

Charges:

Maybe it was the cold air, or the truth serum Elvis handed out prior to the run but tonight it seemed was self-incrimination time.

Rooted - Self	Also taking an umbrella on the run	Guilty
